Description

The 'Advice on Energy' service consists of the realization of an energy balance for communal buildings starting with a visit by an energy adviser and using 3 years of energy-related invoices. Software developed by ADEME allows HEOL, Agence Locale de l'Énergie du Pays de Morlaix - France to analyze the 3 years of invoices and to make an assessment and analysis focusing recommendations for housing collectivities to decrease energy expenditure. The service also provides assistance for construction or renovation of public buildings. The project encompasses training for politicians and technicians.

This service of "Advice on Energy Divided" was created by ADEME in a pilot operation in 1996 and 1997 focusing smaller communities not having energy competence in their technical administration services to decrease the energy expenditure. So ADEME wanted to spread the competences to different communities, which would adhere to the scheme.
